In the year of our Lord on April 11, 2025, the Lord saw fit to call home our eldest sibling. Darlene Jackson was born June 19, 1955, in Austin, Texas to Willie James and Bobbie Jean Jackson. Darlene was a homemaker who kept to herself and loved with all her heart even through her trials and tribulations. “ I'm sorry for your loss. She she, by chance, own an old Voightlander camera around 1963? I recently bought one and the manual has written, in very neat handwriting, J Darlene Jackson, 11-18-1963. I'd love to learn more about the original owner. Your Darlene would have been about 8 in 1963.

Sisterly love 💕💕

April 11, a day that will forever be etched in my heart, as of April 11, 2025, I will always treasure the profound and precious impact you had on our family's heart, especially mine. Your presence in my life, though only 2 to 3 weeks prior, will always be a cherished memory, as we sat at the kitchen table, and you were dressed in a beautiful yellow sundress, print with sunflowers, like a butterfly. Although your journey took an unexpected turn, I find solace and comfort in knowing that our God rescued you from adversity. I love you dearly, and I am grateful for the transformative power of God's love that we shared. Praise God that you were physically blind for only a little while, but received your spiritual sight that no darkness can comprehend. Hallelujah! I am thankful that we both are saved, and I have every confidence that you are now in His loving care. I still remember that day you accepted Him into your life, it was as if a lightbulb illuminated your forehead. Thank God for your eternal salvation. Forever love your sister. We shall reunited, and until then, rest with those who have gone before us. Love always, Debra
