“ I think about you often, all the precious memories we share as kids. Playing make believe & day dreaming about having superpowers. If only for a day I would travel back in time to living on Greenwich St, only we know why that place was so special. I pray you're at peace with Mommy. I miss you every single day. ❤️

“Brother, I wish to see the world through your eyes. To see the light to let me voice hope and optimism like you did. I'm not ready for the memories we share to be mine alone just yet. We spent so much time together I believed we truly had forever. It's not fair, but we already knew that. We're tougher than we come across. At least I know that.

Brother, I wish to see the world through your eyes. To see the light that will allow me to voice hope and optimism the way you did. I'm not ready for the memories we shared to be mine alone. We spent so much time together that I truly believed we had forever. I wish you were here, it's not fair. But we already knew that. We're tougher than we come across. At least I know that.
